Other business of a routine nature was conducted by the commission. The appeal of "Manny Diaz" to be reinstated as an officially sanctioned night spot emcee, was not acted upon, however. His case remains under advisement, pending the results of his attorney's efforts to convince Police Supt. John T. Sayers that "Manny" should be allowed to return to work in a Lowell night club on a probationary basis.

The entertainer's unemployment entered the 11th week last night since he was banned from a nightspot because of a ruling that refuses "known or reputed female impersonators" the right to perform in Lowell establishments.
