The sudden death of Alexander G. Cumnock

Alexander G. Cumnock, dean of the cotton manufacturing industry in New England, and one of the founders of the great Textile school in this city, and one of the foremost citizens of Massachusetts, died suddenly after a few hours' illness on Sunday morning at the summer home of his daughter, Mrs. John Wood Bledgett, at Pride's Crossing, Mass.

Mr. Cumnock was born Sept. 28, 1834, in Glasgow, Scotland, and had he lived another month would have been eighty-five years old. His father, Robert L. Cumnock, manufacturer, came with his wife and two children to this country in 1846. The family having settled in this city, Alexander, ambitious to succeed, eagerly availed himself of the educational opportunities.

OMICRON PI FRATERNITY

HAS NEW HOME

The Omicron Pi Fraternity has recently purchased the property located at 298 Pawtucket Street. Some alterations will be made on the house before it will be occupied, but it is probable that within a very few weeks the fraternity fellows will move in, and become acquainted with their new home.

The house has an ideal situation, commanding a view of the Pawtucket Falls and is in easy reach of the school.

FRESHMEN PARADE

A Grand Success in the Opinion of the Sophs

At 8:45 p.m. on September the 29th, 1919, war was declared between the Freshmen and the Sophomores of the Lowell Textile School, although the Freshmen were unaware of this at the time. After giving their life history to the recruiting officers (F) in the library the Freshmen assembled in the main hall and received their general orders for the coming year. The Sophs rallied down in the carpenter shop, and selected the most likely looking specimens of that old time persuader the paddle, much to the delight of Bill's stock on hand. The Sophs then attempted to get recruits from the upperclassmen, but were unsuccessful owing to the general aspect of the situation. In spite of this the Sophs decided to risk it, and at the close of President Eames' address, they added a few laws of their own making, as to how a Freshman should behave at L. T. S. The Freshmen were then invited to the quadrangle, and lost the first battle, namely each decided that he would make a deposit of his shoes with the Soph army. A few had to be persuaded, which the Sophs did in an energetic manner. Formation was then made, and the Freshman started on the annual march to the square minus their shoes. Altho this was a forced march it took nearly one and a half hours to go a mile. Some Freshmen preferred to ride on the electrics, but the Sophs discouraged all such attempts. After a triumphal entry into Lowell's famous square the Freshmen were allowed to scampir for their shoes, and after each had finally recovered his own foot gear, the Sophs declared the Freshman to be duly initiated into the Lowell Textile School.

The first student conference at which Textile has been represented was certainly one worth while to the Textile delegates. The delegates were quartered in the various dormitories and tents, and we were fortunate to secure two corner

Mass Meeting and Smoker

Much Enthusiasm Exhibited at First Smoker of School Year. Clarkson, former big league star, and Hudson, football coach, speak.

Last Wednesday night witnessed the first smoker of the school year. It was a great success for the turn out and enthusiasm was very creditable indeed. President Eames was the first speaker of the evening and his remarks, in brief, were as follows:

"It is certainly very encouraging to see so many men here. The upper classmen have probably explained about L. T. S., about its socials, entertainments, good times, and other things of interest to all. We are all interested in these things. The instructors are all boys at class which they left. It is only in this way that we can become a unified body working for the interest of our school.

FRESMEN ATTENTION!!!
Remember that a part of the information and knowledge that you will receive during your three or four years at TEXTILE will be in the form of notes! The question is, what kind of notes are you going to have? A bunch of notes scattered thru several note books, or a complete set of notes in each course that you will be able to bind into one large volume if you wish? The way to acquire the best set of notes is to pick out one size of loose leaf book, and take all the notes in each course on that size of paper, or in other words standardize your note taking. You may not see the necessity of this advice at this time, but ask any upperclassman if such is good practice, and you will get the same answer from them all. NOW IS THE TIME TO START. DON'T DELAY.

REGISTRATION
Largest Class in History of Textile

On Monday, September 29, 1919, the largest registration in the history of the Lowell Textile School was made. The large number of ex-service men, who have returned to Textile was very noticeable. Textile Christian Association
Gets Out Freshman Bulletin

The Textile Christian Association is to be congratulated upon the little booklet which they had printed at the close of the spring term. This book was mailed to every Freshman who had sent in his certificate previous to registration. It has much interesting information concerning activities here at the school and in the city of Lowell. In this way every Freshman received some advanced information about the school of his choice, and felt that someone took an interest in the fact that he had made such a decision. The motto of this association is "Service For Others," and this is only another case of its application.

COMPETITIVE SYSTEM FOR TEXT OFFICES

It is the idea of the managers of this paper, that next year’s staff officers will be chosen from among those rendering the greatest assistance to the paper during the coming year. Furthermore, providing the paper is a financial success during the coming year, and every member of the staff works for the paper to the best of his ability, there will be a banquet at the conclusion of the year.

NATIONAL EMBLEM PRESENTED BY CHINESE STUDENT ASSOCIATION

A very impressive service was observed when Dr. Hawkins, of the First Congregational Church on Merrimack Street, acknowledged the gift of the Chinese students at Textile. In gratitude to the members of the church who were sending two missionaries to China, the Chinese students presented the church with their national emblem, together with a letter of thanks.

The foreign students unconsciously gave L. T. S., a great book, the presentation of their flag. Not only will be missionaries remember it when they are over in the Orient, but right here in this city there are a great many people who think differently than before and who have a much warmer feeling for the Lowell Textile School.

BASEBALL MEN TO GET SWEATERS
Revival of Old Custom Should Encourage Athletics

For the first time in several years, sweaters are to be given to nine men on last spring’s baseball team. The giving of sweaters is an old custom revived, for in bygone days, all baseball and football men who had played in the required number of games, were presented with sweaters directly after the season closed. It is the intention of the athletic committee to present sweaters to the football men immediately after the present season finishes. Without doubt the squads in the future will be much larger, if the presentation of sweaters is continued and becomes a custom once again.

The following men are to receive sweaters: Mullaney, Goldman, Doyle, Xoune, Forsaith, Marble, Hart, Clayton, Scott.

offered by the public schools, becoming a pupil in the Edison grammar school.
He devoted not only his days to study,
but after work was over, his evenings
as well, added lessons in mathematics and mechanical drawing to his curriculum. Doubtless the progress thus made influenced him in later years in the part he took to make the Lowell Textile school available to young men unable to study during the daytime.

The greatest monument to his lifework, however, is undoubtedly the Lowell Textile school, which, due to his forsight and interest, has played an important part in the industry of New England and the country.

In a public address delivered by Mr. Cun-
mock at the opening of the school
February 6, 1897, he said:

"It seems fitting that this school,
the first incorporated Textile school in New England, should be located at Lowell, Massachusetts, the mother textile city of America, the city and state affording financial aid in its establishment and the manufacturers of New England being equally liberal in their contributions. The advantages of the school at a textile centre where every commercial fibre enters into the products, the student thus being directly in touch with the industry and management thereof, will be apparent.

"The object of the school is to give instruction in the practical knowledge necessary in the cotton, woolen, worsted, silk and other textile industries, in sciences and arts as applied to these industries, and in the processes and methods of the purpose of improving any special trade, or of introducing new branches of industry. It is essentially a trade school, and the whole plan provides for such instruction only as will be found useful in textile trades.

"Science and art will be taught, not with the object of educating professional and scientific men, but with a view to industrial and commercial applications; but the school offers to graduates of universities and scientific institutions an opportunity of instruction in the practical application of certain branches of science."

This was the basis of the need for the school, as Mr. Cumnock first concerned it, and to this ideal, in large measure through his guidance, it has kept true in the years since its founding, for Mr. Cumnock has continued from the start to serve as president of the board of trustees and the school
now ranks with the best of the textile educational institutions of the world.

heart. It may be difficult to some to think of the football season as a business, but nevertheless they enjoy the games and good times if given an opportunity to enter into them.

The football team is composed of the best textile students. Each member of the team is expected to work towards the success of the team, and his work is of utmost importance.

The Textile show will be the next event of the season. The upper classmen will probably not wait long before starting this affair.

The first issue of the Text will appear in a few days. There were really only two men behind it. These men are still working on the next issue, and I hope it will never cease to be published.

The Pick-Out started in the same way. The man who originated it is now in the S. A. T. C. The other men who have been behind it are also successful business men.

The Fraternities have dances throughout the year to help the last baseball season. We had a good team last year in spite of the S. A. T. C. and the war.

But all editors, coaches, captains, and other single individuals cannot do the jobs alone. The individual spirit of all L. T. S. is necessary. The cooperation is necessary all along the line. With this spirit a successful season is assured.

Following Mr. Eames, Coach Hudson spoke to the fellows:

"In a way it's a pleasure to speak here and in a way it is not. Coaching and speaking are two different things. I am glad to see you all together and see what you look like. I might tell you about a game we played in Italy. We advertised the game and the Italians came out in force. There was a regular mix-up with the men all piled on top of each other, and the Italians did not understand it. They thought it was a free-for-all fight, and the first thing we knew they were pulling on the field and were pulling the men apart. It certainly was a funny thing to see, and was a surprise.

"I hope this team will prove equally surprising to L. T. S."

"Has the war made football too tame? After seeing the men at practice and hear what is said, it is certain that the men do not consider it too tame.

I should like to present four elements necessary for a successful season of the team. I hope every man will work as hard and energetically.

First, the team. There is no eleven. No one knows who the eleven is. Even I do not know who the eleven will be. But the squad is out strong and will make a great team.

Second, the student body. We are making a long start, but are doing good work. We must be able to set such an example that the ten commandments of Our Lord and the lawn may be known to every student.

Third, the Text. The Text is a part of the team. The Text has its own way of showing interest in the happenings of the team.

Fourth, the public. This is the root of the whole thing. Rooting helps whether we are winning or losing. The money spent this past year is not going to be wasted. The Text is doing a good job of keeping the public in touch with the happenings of the team."

The last speaker of the evening was Mr. Walter Clarkson, who was introduced as the "former captain of two of the best baseball teams that Harvard University ever turned out. After leaving college, Mr. Clarkson entered professional baseball, pitching with Cleveland for two seasons and later coached the eleven at West Point."

In an informal and yet inspiring way the speaker showed the true value of "sports" in the life of a college man. He said in part: "It is a big mistake to think that you can devote all your time to athletics, but it's the way that you devote that time that counts. It is not only on the day, but the time you spend studying and preparing for the game."

"Cheering is like a stimulant, it spurs the players on to victory. If you think a subject be not discouraged, but stick to it and you will get it. Our professors are very kind to us and they are always ready to help. From my experience abroad I can say frankly that I have never had professors who looked at me with any degree of sympathy."

5. If you think you are not doing things in your class as you should be, you will have to go farther. You can say that you are doing the best you can, but you are not doing it at the highest mark.

6. Never think that you are in school to get high marks. No! You are in college to get knowledge, to be prepared for the practical life and naturally, if you study, do your work accurately and promptly you will be benefited with good marks. The "getting by" business will never satisfy you. For if you get by in school, you will think in the future work. But rather say, "I have got to study, I have to know in order to be able to meet the difficulties in my life come."

And you will be happy and satisfied. At the end, not your marks, but your ability to understand things clearly, will count.

7. I will urge you on the same things our President urged upon you at the meeting of the "Co-operation in all activities of our Institution," for through the law of co-operation we are coming in contact with different classes of the people, with different nationalities, with different characters and dispositions, with different customs and habits, and this broadens our mind, widens our vision and gives us an opportunity to understand the psychophysics of human kind.

Let every one of you think over these points and I am sure that you will profit by it.

FIRST HOME GAME SATURDAY

Textile plays the first game on the home grounds Saturday. The oppo-ents will be New Bedford Textile School. Much interest is expected in this game, because this is the first contest with this rival Textile School, for several years. The home team is going to, as shown by the two games already played, and should give a good account of itself Saturday.

New Bedford will bring up a strong, fast team, and will make things interesting for us. As this is the first home game, and we have one of the best teams in the history of the school, everyone will turn out, and hope the Black and Red win its first home game against this would-be rival Textile Institution.

TEXTILE LOSES TO WORCESTER

Textile lost to Worcester Academy October 4th by the close score of 7-6. Textile took the offensive in the first quarter, and had the ball on the three yard line, only to lose it on downs. Worcester soon recovered and until the third quarter a real battle took place. It was during this quarter that the scoring on both sides was made. Textile’s score came after Lombard recovered a punt very near Worcester’s goal. A few rushes succeeded in putting the ball over the line for Textile’s only score. Failure to kick the goal resulted in the score being six. Shortly after this Worcester scored their touchdown, which was a result of a forward pass and a short run. Worcester succeeded in kicking her goal.

Neither side scored again, and Textile went down to defeat fighting hard as the final whistle blew.

All agreed that it was a well fought game which goes to show that Textile will have a team that can be proud of.

RESUME OF FOOTBALL SCHEDULE

OCT. 4—Worcester Academy at Worcester.

OCT. 9—Dean Academy at Franklin.

OCT. 18—New Bedford Textile School at Durham.

OCT. 25—H. State College at Durham.

NOV. 1—Fitchburg State Normal at Lowell.

NOV. 8—Tufts, ’23 at Lowell.

NOV. 15—M. I. T. at Lowell (Pending)

NOV. 22—Boston University at Lowell.

The write-up on the Worcester Academy game will be found in another portion of this paper.

The time of publication we will have played our second game which is to be with Dean Academy at Franklin.

On October 15th we play New Bedford. The last game will be held on the last time on October 25th, when it goes to Durham, N. H., to play N. H. State College. This game promises to be our biggest game of the season. Therefore every person should be present on the part of the school body to be present.

The Fitchburg State Normal team is due in Lowell on November 1st. Perhaps it will be enough to say that Fitchburg has several men who will make the game very interesting for Lowell.

Tufts, ’23, plays at Lowell on November 8th. According to the latest reports it will pay every man to be at this game.

The game with M. I. T. is not at present entirely settled. It is without doubt however that the game will be played on November 15th at Lowell.

The last game is with Boston University. It will be played on November 22nd at Lowell. B. U. is trying to put out a winning team this year, and so the game promises to be full of joy.

This year Textile has the strongest team she has ever put out, and considering the amount of practice they have had, they should be leading last Saturday proves the fact. The team can not do all however. It is only with the aid of the student body as a whole that the team will gain their best success. Therefore the appeal to the school body, that they concentrate their efforts and aid as much as possible in making the football season a success is justified.
