The New Constitution

The new proposed constitution of a Student Association and Student Council printed in this issue of the Text has grown, more or less directy, out of discussions on the part of the Music and Dramatic Club and the Athletic Association of the School. At a meeting of the student body some time ago, held for the express purpose of bringing the two factions into friendly agreement, Howard Runter '24 brought forth a tentative draft of a constitution designed primarily to place the governing of all student activities in the hands of a general Student Association. This first rough draft was a very good start towards the long sought goal of many members of the student body, namely, the organization of a Student Council. Upon nomination from the floor, Mr. Blommer and Joseph Webster, '25, were accepted as a committee to draw up a constitution in finished form to present to the student body for consideration. The committee consisted of representatives from each orchestra team, representing as nearly as possible its individual interests, and from each athletic team, representatives being chosen with as uniform a quota of each delegate from other branches. This, in written form, Webster’s plan, is a fine and clear, and the task of making it appear in printing. The pronouns used for actions by any one individual are, however, indicated to the committee that these delegates should have more voting power on the council, and that the place to present the arguments for the two proposals was not upon the council’s conference table, but the student body. This is a point upon which the decision must be made, and the only one that would prove that the rest of the paper is acceptable.

Conclusion of the Athletic Association Constitution now in effect, there are really few changes in this new one in regard to the governing of the Music and Dramatic Club and the Athletic Association. There are indeed slight changes taking the form of additions and abbreviations of scope. The main object of the amendment, however, is the very same in both bodies: improved method.

Fristance Well Under Way

ALL DEPARTMENTS MOVING RAPIDLY

The preliminaries in the production of “Fristance” have now been completed and the show is moving along under full steam. The books, lyrics, and music are complete, and copies of the book have been made. The songs are being printed, and the music is being arranged. The arrangement is complete except for a few men who will be taken on a few weeks before the performance so the holiday planned and schedules made up for all departments. Cast rosters were held two weeks ago, and the cast placed under rehearsal, but the chorus is not yet under rehearsal.

Watch the "Text" for the list of cast, follow and chorus, and for details of progress. The exact time and place of the show, with a scale of prices will be announced soon.

Following is a complete financial report covering the first year’s activities of the Musical and Dramatic Club.

Ambition

Ambition in the life of an artist holds sway. Like waterfalls oysters hold a sinking ship. It grasps him with an unrelenting grip. His heart is right, his aim by day it holds him in the rough and rosy way. If from its rugged path he does to one end it plunges him back with cruel whip.

And till his hand the top does not rest
Ambition’s rule falls all a life has had,
And in its clasp new is an humble soul.
His said, his life, his brightest day
Ambition’s clings to it eternal hold.
And through a life with highest deeds
He comes at length to his reward the grave.

Comprehensive Examination
Subject of examination Name
The student body, not the mind. I hereby dedicate my word as that taking this examination I have neither received or given aid, nor have I evidence of such conduct on the part of others. Signed, General Direction to the Student Body
Make the uses of every first you know. If you don’t know which one is there, distrust your ignorance in a weight of words.

Remember, that matters, writing, and organizing, no information is what gets you the penalty mark.

If you can’t write a long word use anything.

Always keep in mind that when a Proff is tired of correcting, quantity not quality is important in his eyes. A Proff might let it his duty to read a short answer, but might not feel that your paper is going to be.

Do not consider sleeping the night before an exam. Your brain must get in to the habit of being wide awake.

Never answer the question: was it only asked because the Proff couldn’t think of anything else. Tell everything that sounds and let the Proff pick out what he wants.

If you resolve and feel tired during an exam, get yourself and gather and lower the legs to a vertical position, and while doing this breath deeply.

The purpose of these rules is to make all unnecessary movements out of order.
