LOWELL TEXTILE WINS OVER FALL RIVER

TEAM SHOWS BRILLIANT FORM—SCORE 6:14

Capt. Louis Athanas Scores 27 Points—Lancers Register Only One Point in Second Half.

Flashing a brilliant offensive game after a slow start, Lowell Textile's basketball team shot down a score of 27 over the Durfee Textile players of Fall River, who were unable to score in the Refugee's territory, after half time.

In the first half, the Lancers played at the Textile game.

The second half opened with the score tied at 18, the Lancers taking the lead early. The last five minutes of the game were a one-sided victory for the Lancers, who never gave their opponents a chance to even think about winning.

Gamma Chapter

All arrangements have been completed for the observance of the 30th anniversary of Gamma Chapter of Phi Psi Fraternity to be held Saturday evening, January 16, at Shawmut Manor. Gamma Chapter is the chap- ter of the Phi Psi national fraternity at the Lowell Textile Institute, which was organized in January 1924.

CHRISTMAS ASSEMBLY
AT LOWELL TEXTILE

SEVERAL NOVEL FEATURES ADD TO ITS SIGNIFICANCE

On Thursday, December 28, the annual Christmas Assembly was held at this Institute. Several unusual items were added to the success of the convocation. The program was carried on in two parts. The first part was a concert by the F.E.A. orchestra under the direction of Mr. John Brodecke. The orchestra played a very diversified program and their offerings were highly applauded by the entire assemblage. The vocal selections were likewise appreciated. The program was as follows:

March, "Washington Green"

"Stay as Sweet as You are" sung by Joe Deshler

"When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" sung by Nola Deschere

"A Trip Around the Calendar" sung by Charles Hardesty

"Battle of San Juan Hill"

"Santa Claus is Coming to Town" sung by Johnnae Hall

March—Handel's "Samson" conducting "Christmas Medley"

President Lamb, on behalf of the faculty and student body, extended thanks to the musicians for their splendid concert. The second portion of the program opened with the assembly singing "O Come All Ye Faithful," with Mr. Fox at the piano.

Lowell Textile Opens Season With Victory

Proud to the limit by a smooth-working Murray Quintet, the Lowell textile basketball team received a real test in its limited game of the season, taking out a 38 to 24 victory over a third string.

Three veterans of last year's club and two freshmen composed the Ten- dle team, and all hands are Capt. Louis Athanas at forward and George Josephine and John H. Huxford in mid. The novices are Charles Keaton at center and Joseph L. Baker at forward.

Keaton played a fine game and succeeded in getting the tip-a-jury vote. It was soon discovered that he was up.

The First All Institute Dance—Feb. 6, 1935
Esprit de Corps

On several occasions during the past few months, the writer had heard many disparaging remarks about the spirit that characterized the Institute.

Although the schedule carried out by the student body allows for little time for such things as studies, meetings, and the like, most of the students do attend a dance, and now and again, a class-meeting is held. The Institute also has its Text, the Plaudit, the Textile Players, and the Upstairs Room. With such a diverse group of activities surely, every student should find one or two that interest him. Yet, with all these events, only a small group of loyal followers is to be counted upon when the affair is held. A reason for such state of affairs must exist, and after all the allowances have been made, the reason is to be called incoherence. No one expects that the student body will attend every gathering, but it does seem proper that some attempt be made.

One does not need to be given a great magnification to visualize the change that would come up if Upstairs Day, the Text, or any other of the above-mentioned events were cancelled. The greatest loss would come from the fact that the day of the affair would be bound to result from the scene of activity.

Our social life, our college spirit, and our few days of diversion here at T. T. I. depend on the solid support of the student body. Therefore we appeal to all the students to tell their friends, to promote a greater spirit of cooperation on the part of those interested, and to insist that their school activities should not be

Midyear's

At this point of the college year, the students are in a state of unrest due to the mid-year examinations. Unfortunately such activities are for ever outstanding, but there is a slight advantage. If a student has been diligently prepared and succeeded in obtaining the fundamentals of the course, then he has nothing to fear. To him an examination should be merely a review of his knowledge in the proper form.

In the case of the student who is just before a passing average, the examinations demonstrate the need of a little more initiative on the part of the student who is far below passing it offers a warning of the necessity of greater effort and a greater devotion of time to the particular subject in hand.

When we take our places in the world we shall not be required to take periodic examinations, but if we fail to grasp the method of attack here in college we cannot expect to solve these problems that will inevitably await us.

If the results of these examinations were good, one would find yourself shipped to any particular field that you may have prepared yourself accordingly in which you may reporters the deficiency.

AN INTERVIEW WITH THE ATHLETIC DIRECTOR

After being published the virtues of the other side, the Faculty felt that it was necessary to do something about it. The Athletic Association decided to publish the views of the men who direct the athletics of the school, and to meet them with the paper containing the history of the field, as the Advertiser.

Since the last issue of the Faculty, it had been decided to publish the views of the men who direct the athletics of the school. As I approached the men for the interviews, I found that the men did not want to discuss the athletic situation with me. Mr. Adaptive, the Athletic Director, had agreed to discuss it, but the men did not want to talk about it. Mr. Adaptive said he would not talk about it.

“I have no time to talk about it. Why don’t you just go back to your own field and let me do my job?”

Mr. Adaptive said he would not talk about it.

Miss Helen certainly wanted a hot drink when he had the E.R.A. election of the Christmas Assembly at the Parson's house how close she came to being the one who was to have been called upon for the luck.

Well, Horble did meet the only of Roland's house before you went skating during the vacation. there was ever little thing?

At last nature showed itself in its true colors. Ochlocknee demonstrated his powers of intimidation with a puddle at the D. K. Narragh. We'll worry that he would not have been so violent, however. If he lacked the "big stick."

Claude "Baboon" Belcher will soon release his forecast for the business trends of 1935. Also included in his booklet will be a folder telling where it is possible to cash check-certi- fied if you have no desire to lose your money or to be arrested for check passing then don't pay any attention in the bed.

We are beginning to wonder as to just who was the god of after all the 1935 initiatives were over. Some of the fathers looked worse than their victims.

Old Bill Ireland stuck to Melbourne intent or did he try to steal John Hollo's girl during the vacation?

Lincoln is back from Philadelphia. He reports that everything but the rats has been settled. Incidentally he has his hands on a boxe along with him everyday he goes South.

At last we've cornered Pte. A. Valianto. It took a lot of pulling but it was worth it. It meant that Val had been triping the light fantastic with a local girl. They both look like pistols and he gave her a Live year with a look and key for Christmas. One never knows what some of those quiet kids will do.

TELLS MAMA EVERYTHING

"Darling, you were awfully late last night. I was afraid I'm dreadfully out of practice, but I should like to know where you were."

"Certainly not, I didn't wait at all, you don't know, and we went to several places I don't suppose you were in, and finished at some little club— I forget its name, but it's in a cellar somewhere in John. It's all right, isn't it maman?"

"Of course darling, it's only that I just like to know."

CONTINUED STORY

"What did your aunt tell you when you stayed out late the other night?"

"She hasn't finished telling it all to the post."

Caustic

Best of luck, for the New Year and for the mid-year examinations that are now upon us.

We extend our most sincere congratulations to the Class of '35 for the Christmas dance which it sponsored. Well done, fellows! It promises to be the outstanding event of this college year. Nothing but praise was heard after the dance. May your future ventures be as successful.

The Christmas Assembly was another very enjoyable gathering. The music was running and the speaker was exceedingly good. It often seems that that scattered through the audience there are always a few, perhaps five or six students who are conspicuous by their manners or by their lack of them! We know that they do not mean to be vulgar or to be discreet. It's just a case of few bad little boys who learn to behave when they grow up. We hope that it won't be too long, however, before they mature.

1937 News

The only thing about Ray Wilson which was impaired by the Christmas vacation was his sense of humor— if any. Even though he is wandering around the corridors of the Textile in a deep blue fog, the whole crabs which he made all during last week were much above his usual standard.

Thomas Fisher gets a job in the Prop and a few weeks later his line is barn a Pickard. Draw your own conclusions, fellow-victims.

What woolfooted nameless Wagner would be his given a swimming medal as he thinks he is if he could only Sake.

And why are you reading this stuff instead of studying for the mid-year? Or weren't you reading it?

THE MERRY MISHMASH

"You know Joe, the great base runner who won games? What about Joe, the great base runner who went home?"

"He got a job as an umpire."
