Leonard Frank

In this his 45th year of coaching and the anniversary of his 70th birthday, Coach Dave still has those immortal qualities that have made him one of the foremost coaches of his era. His winning personality, his love for good clean sport, and an indescribable ability to inspire his teams to heights no one dreamed of for a man who has overcome almost insurmountable problems and can still laugh at them and continue to beat them. It is the story of a love so wonderful that not even sickness and strife could destroy it, but rather incited his desire and devotion. Such a man is Coach Dave Morey.

Dave Morey was born on July 25, 1899 in Malden, Mass. He went to Malden High School where he was captain of both the basketball and football teams. He also was a track and baseball star. On graduation from Malden he was accepted to Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H., where he majored in French and minored in economics. During his freshman year he was captain of the freshman football and baseball teams where he was a halfback and a pitcher. He pledged Theta Delta Chi and lived the next three years at the fraternity house. His roommate was Joe Donahue, a famous Lowell attorney. In his sophomore year he played varsity baseball, football and basketball and received letters in the first two. Part of the football schedule included such schools as Harvard, Princeton, and Cornell. The most striking game of that year was the Ambassador. After each penalty Dave took the ball and made the goal posts, and each time the play was called back. That year he made Walter Kemp’s (Mr. Football of that time) All-American Team. In his third year he was accepted to the Junior Order of the Turtle, an honorary society on campus for extracurricular activities. That year he received his basketball letter. For the curtail side he was a member of the school orchestra (violin). His mother was a well known musician who in part accounts for his talent.

In his senior year Dave’s most memorable game was played against Princeton at the New York Polo Grounds. The game was scoreless except for the last few seconds when DeWitt attempted a drop kick from the 45-yard line. He was rushed, got the ball away and got it past the line of scrimmage. Dave was playing halfback in a 5-2-2 defense so there was no safety man. The ball bounced between the two halfbacks and over the goal posts. Because of this event and a similar one in another game that season the rule was revised. That year was especially good for touchdowns for Dave as he was leading Jim Thorpe up to the end of the season. Carlyle had two more games than Dartmouth and Thorpe pounced ahead in the end. Coach Dave was also elected to Taeopion, the senior governing board of the school similar to our Student Council. He graduated from Dartmouth in June of the year 1913.

On July 4, Coach Mack signed Dave up for the Philadelphia Athletics. Mack usually lets the ballot box for a number of games, but this time Dave was picked and Mack sent Dave out on the mound. It was in the seventh inning and the opposing team was winning. Dave gave away two bases and the ball went on to win the game. Dave played only two minutes and six weeks before Mack wanted him back in the minors. Dave quit for he felt that he didn’t have enough to play major league ball and he wouldn’t play at all.

From here he went back to New Brunswick where he had been playing semi-pro ball during the summer of his college career in order to pay for his expenses. He stayed in Jowey City, a few other ball clubs in New England, and decided that that type of ball didn’t appeal to him and quite.

He started his own team down on the Cape, and out of the team was Pete Traver, now in Pasco’s Hall of Fame. The coach then went back to Dartmouth as assistant coach to Coach Vawdell. After a while he took a pleasure trip to Europe and when he returned he turned his former team over to Moncy. They were engaged two weeks after they met and married two years later.

In ’14 and ’15 Dave fell into a slump and felt coaching was not a valuable profession. He went in Dr. Young, now a famous Boston surgeon and good friend of Dave’s and asked his advice. To this day Dave remembers this story of his dear friend, "The one thing in life is important in service; it is the one thing that gives value to life, and you could render as much service as a coach as you could as a doctor, lawyer, or a man in any other field." But not content with his lay down, he took his job with Swift and Company and said was tending the United States as a plant manager. All this while he was coaching. He was forced alone one more thing, his wife-to-be.

She stipulation in his contract was that he was to be at college every other week. He met Miss Mary, to be "Toppy" (later, Mary to join him on the road and become his wife or a he would come after her. She came and they were married. Here followed the papers got wild and the story and released it and Dave felt obliged to resign. Coach Davis, former head coach of L. T. 1, and Dave aletter to come to Tech in December of Physical Education and Athletics and to coach and teach, but he studied chemistry for a short while. After spending two years teaching in 1913 and in the year 1917 because LIT was doing away with athletics.

Note: These boys

During the years 14 and 18 he coached at Malden High School. He resigned because he did not like high school ball and there was no opportunity the part of the athletes. During this time he also coached a Fairmont team. While he was on the bench at Fairmont, Fisher Carey came up to see him. He offered Dave a job as assistant coach at Knute Rockne for football, head coach of basketball, and teacher of mathematics. Dave was signed up, but during the summer of that year, while practicing with his team at Falmouth, he broke his leg going from second to third. He hired Bryan Carey for his condition and got a release from the job. The job, of course, was at Notre Dame.

He went to Middlebury College as assistant coach. His team was so successful that at the end of the first year Middlebury offered him a five year contract. Dave has been with the team for four years before the time was up because Topping is still. His success at Middlebury is best described by the following clipping: "Dave's" reputation is such that even the men who played for him and went on to glory and fame in other places are the most prominent and greatest among them.

"Dave's" men resigned Middlebury's "miracle mentor" is to the call of the boys of Vermont and carry on his work in the Big Green. The news of resignation came as a great blow to the men's college. When the first whispers of rumor swept across the campus, groups of men met in agony to the memories and frustrations of the probability of the unavenged by the boys being true. And now that it is confirmed by his own statement in the columns today, one feels for the outcome of the next football season.

"Until his arrival here to assist Coach Brown with the football squad of '33, Coach Morey has worked and strived to build up the same and proud of Middlebury team. He produced the framing eleven that entered the huge Harvard stadium on a certain day in 1933. He played another little college team to the powerful
