Radio's Sound-Effects Men "See" With Their Ears

I "knew that was a good idea," said Walter Pierson, sound-effects man for the College Art Casting System, "the minute I laid my ears on it."

"No," Mr. Pierson continued in the story of the vague objective of the country—men who have here-hitherto noisy and social interests in other lands than the United States. We of this generation just feel that that's great. We want no part of it."

Here is a quick summary of the other indications that point to the fact that today's college youth is not unanimous in agreeing with the peace-at-any-price talk. The world should be in mind that the world.

The Johnson City (Tenn.) State Teachers College Choral Unit says: "Our people need to wake up. They need to depart from so much of the present 'theory' teaching and 'idealism,' and teach a few fundamental realities of good, honest citizenship. If this were done, we would not have a lot of weak-minded college students shouting to the world that they would not fight for the country under any circumstances!"

Secondly, this view, the Eastern Illinois State Normal College News says: "No one can criticize opposition to war in general, but when it comes to such yellow-livered pacifists as this implies we are not surprised that adults wonder whether we are frightened or just ignorant. To say that one will not fight under any circumstances is as foolishly as to flare up at the drop of a hat. It shows dogmatism of the worst academic order."

The Dartmouth College Daily Portland points recently to one of the little-talked-of results of organization for peace: "There is another danger in (peace) organizations, a danger which was illustrated at Dartmouth during the World War, when a group of students, in effective peace and having nothing else to do, starting a movement."

The Bishop Misbehaves

The Bishop Misbehaves, a three-Act comedy by Frederick Jackson, is the Play chosen by the Textile Players for their Annual Show to be held on Friday, April 26.

Mr. Charles J. Keys Again to Act as Coach.

The Bishop Misbehaves, a three-Act comedy by Frederick Jackson, has been selected by the Lowell Textile Players for their 1940 Show and Dance. The date of the production is Friday, April 26. It will be held as usual in the Rec Auditorium. Charles J. Keys will again act as coach.

The cast consists of seven men and two women, and since only nine of last year's cast of eleven are available this year, there is an unusual opportunity for students interested in dramatics. As usual the women's parts will be taken by men. Members of all classes, particularly of the class of 1943, are urged to try for a part. In addition to the good times enjoyed by the cast during rehearsals, each member is awarded the gold watch charm of the Textile Players, and a few weeks after the Textile Show attends a Boston Theatre party.

Students interested in trying for a part are requested to give their names to Prof. Eddick, or to Miss Cunningham before February 15.

its platform, helped to bring into being the volunteer movement for war. Dartmouth learned that one organization sets up an opposing organization, that movements for peace generate friction which will start a counter movement for war.

Pointing to the dangers of pacifism, the Wellesley College News said: "Once again the small, peace-loving institutions are facing the possibility of being sacrificed to aid in the greater politics of a great and forceful state. Germany is waging a war of service against Belgium and the Netherlands similar to that which preceded the invasion of Poland. This is an indictment of passive pacifism. Those who are truly pacifist, who are sincerely dismayed at the recognition that the peaceful state is now no more a 'buffet,' cannot fail to realize that a mere lip service to pacifistic principles, a passive hope that a state wishing peace will be left alone, is not enough.

Turning to the sorry side of peace talk, the University of Georgia Red & Black maintains that '91 is a good year, its Naval Band alone has kept at least on par with those of other first class powers. America foresees a glorious future for the Red & Black. As the most numerous, they must contribute a superiority in quality of personnel, equipment, and mechanism strength.'

In urging support for the National Guard, the Emporia (Kansas) State Teachers College Bulletin said: "There is no real American war! The conditions are even more concerned with keeping peace in the world than the average student, for they more fully realize what war means to them. They can also more easily visualize the actual wartime living conditions from the sample they have had. It is generally agreed that the Americans cannot loose in the last war has been fought so greatly reduced but the men been able to get more training before going into the field. Without considering any other points, that alone is a justification of membership in the National Guard.'

An age summary of this new trend is this statement written by a freshman for the Janestown College Collegian: "Let us forget that fear of death and remember the greater responsibilities. Let us proclaim our willingness to die for democracy, with that proclamations claim the strength and backbone necessary for a strong nation."

So you see, despite the popular belief that all college students are pacifists, the anti-pacifist was growing steadily, though not spectacularly, in these times when war is an almost universal subject in the classroom.

Photography for art's sake and human interest, too

Those are the chief requirements for the pictures that all members of the Lowell Textile Institute are invited to submit for the third annual College Digest Salon exhibition, rules for which were announced last week by the chairman of the college newspaper section.

This amateur photo contest is continuing each year to select the prize-winning pictures to be featured in the annual college exhibition—an edition that is a special "showing" of the best work done by college photographers during the year.

That special editorial competition has created the greatest possible interest among student and faculty shutter-snappers, and rewards the winners with cash prizes, the publication of their photos, and participation in a two-day photo workshop that is exhibited at leading college art centers in all sections of the U. S.

The greatest and most widely known of all college camera contests is open to both students and faculty members and invites the experienced amateur is asked by the use of special equipment, or designs of Lowell Textile Institute the prize-winning pictures, as prepared for the third college photo contest which has grown. It's the picture—not the equipment—that counts, and the more imaginative and experienced photographers may participate in the contest.

The following are complete rules for the competition:

1. All material must be sent not later than April 11, to:Salon Editor, College Digest Section, 113 Paddock Building, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

2. Send technical data about each photo and brief resume of college year or friendly standing of the photographer. Information should be complete and the photo will be helpful. Any size of photo is acceptable, but pictures larger than 3 by 5 inches are preferred.

3. There is no entry fee, and each individual may submit as many photos as he wishes. Photos will be returned if postage attached accompanies entries.

S. O. P. Highlights

The new term found the fraternity house with a different set up. Dick Simon is now Steward, and if things continue as they have been going, the fraternity house will have experienced one of its most enjoyable terms.

With the inter-fraternity bowling on the horizon, S. O. P. fratmen Larry Allen, Stan Balf, and Herb Goldberg practicing, Morty Schlesinger, also a member of the Bowling team, will not be available for a couple of weeks. He is recuperating from a minor operation. Word has been received that he is progressing slowly but surely. We are all cheering for you, Morty.

Lester Master and Buddy Wolf are trying to raise "one." It's a race and at the present stage of the game, according to one of the young ladies, Betty Pratt, "It looks like a match of estipulations."

Unfortunately, the S.O.P. basket-ball team has not been at all successful this year. In order to pay the boys, the fraternity is having a dance the night of the S.O.P. O. I. Game. The members of the team are bringing their sisters to the game. They had better play well—or else.

David Rogoff, with the aid of his stage Ajax, rigged up a bell in the house. The latter with his nine and a half miles of electricity is still making mistakes. The bell works—conditionally.
