Lowell Textile Loses First Home Game

Springfield College Wins 7-0

Textile lost its first home game to Springfield College, 7 to 0, in a poorly played game. There were many errors and errors that bunched up which would have turned out to be costly if played.

Gardner pitched the entire game for Textile and did good work except for the fourth inning, which proved the undoing in the losing. There were seven hits for the visitors, all two singles, and no error by Gardner at bat. The other six were scored safely and after the fifth inning only two hits and no runs were made of his defense.

The North team was the big one for Textile, as they scored three runs. Portland started off with a single, a single, and reached out. Gardner was safe on Seaver's choice, but Meeker was thrown out at second. Threlkeld hit to center and Juniwite hit a sacrifice double that scored Gardner and ran to second. Portland to third. Kokosh was passed. Killing the water, Bowd was also passed. Going for another run, we were on the pinch hitter, and Pullen, favored in favor of Pullen. The latter passed Shaprow and forced to add up run, but Greenman ended the ball to gain two outs.

The Textile team looks good, however, and after 11 runs from the third, it has four runs, but we will have a hard time doing it in the game. Kokosh did excellent work on his defense and Porkins's single hit was a good hit of the good.

A.T.C. C.C. Meeting

Monday evening, April 14th, a meeting of A.T.C. C.C. was held in the assembly hall. Perhaps a few weeks are needed to put the meeting of the public in mind of appealing to our pride by declaring the A.T.C. C.C. to a public assembly, but if we do not get the matter some good days, others will not, and the newly-elected officers will find themselves in trouble. First man-free, I had enough interest.

A Brief History of The Lowell Textile Institute

Textile Foundation

Washington, D. C.

The Lowell Textile School was incorporated on June 12, 1835, by a group of men who realized the need of a Textile school. The most prominent of the group was probably Samuel J. Southwick. Eventually, the school was to be the nucleus of the Textile Institute and a leader in the textile industry.

The school was started in 1835, with a small number of students and a few instructors. Over the years, it has grown in size and reputation, becoming one of the leading institutions in the textile industry.

Sophomores Out-point Freshmen at "Y" Night

Win Basketball Game 28-27, and Lose in Other Events.

The Sophomore class out-pointed the freshmen in the T. M. A. C. at the annual "Y" Night on Thursday, April 24, 1933. The basketball game was the most interesting event of the evening, and in a few minutes the Sophomores won 28 to 27. The game was very fast, and from the opening whistle until the end of the game both teams were on their toes. The first half ended with the score 25 to 5 in favor of the Sophomore team.

The swimming match also proved interesting. The freshmen team of Curtis Oliver, Bridges and Johnson claimed the honors in the relay event, while the club in the swimming event. The freshmen also triumphed in the 25 yard dash, while Sullivan beat Okabe in the relay, and Nakamura in the center. Satcher, a senior, won the 25 yard breast stroke, while Bellinger, a sophomore, second, and Harris, a junior, third. The meet was a great success, with the entire audience,300 spectators, watching the event. The minutes were kept by the clock, and the sound of the gong was heard all through the meet.

The basketball game was played in the following order: First half, Sophomore 13, Freshman 8; Second half, Sophomore 15, Freshman 19.

It is with the greatest of pleasure that the Text passes with the faculty, and students of L. T. I. in welcoming the people of Lowell and elsewhere to the Annual Open House. This feature at Textile has been very successful, and last year over 5,000 visitors appreciated the opportunity of inspecting the various departments of the Institute.

In the preceding pages we have endeavored to give a brief survey of events that have made the present Institute such an extraordinary piece of learning. The building and equipment have been criticized in the past, but we fully believe that they who have seen it realize fully well the great opportunities that L. T. I. furnishes to the world.

By the first of March we shall have been associated with the University of Illinois, and the staffs of the L. T. I. and the University of Illinois have already worked very closely together and have managed to form a strong bond which will be strengthened by this move.

building on condition the trustees raised a like amount for the purchase of field equipment. Before the trustees had an opportunity to accept this offer, Frederick Fanning Ayer, Esq., contributed this sum to the trustees provided they purchased land bounded by Stirling Street, Monty Street, Pulaski Street, and Colonial Avenue, and the school located there, and named the first building erected on this site Southwick Hall, as a memorial to Royal Southwick.

In the following year the Legislature appropriated $10,000 more, and Mr. Ayer contributed a like amount. This sum fell short of the necessary amount by $50,000, and in 1903 he gave $14,000.

Rice Hall, dedicated to the memory of Richard Rice, was contributed by Charlotte P. Kline and Susan K. Scott, his daughters; the Kline Mohair Company of Lowell, founded by Mr. Kline, was also a generous contributor.

The Pulaski Street building and the Colonial Avenue buildings were erected a little later, and the funds were contributed by the Community.

The first building of the present school was dedicated on February 12, 1899, by Gov. John L. Haidu. In 1875, there were many other pickup teams bowling, and the alleys were run from seven o'clock until ten by the textile boys. Refreshments, consisting of coffee, sandwiches and cheese, were served at the end of the evening's event.

Suddenly, the feeling was so general that it was decided to run the railroad from the school to Westfield.
