Dr. I. M. Paige Elected by Trustees to Post

Dr. I. M. Paige, former member of the LTI Faculty and more recently of one of the holding trade schools in the country, last night was approved in a special session of the Board of Trustees of the Lowell Textile Institute in the following statement:

I am very pleased at the decision of the Board of Trustees. I will continue to serve as principal of the school, but I will have to resign from my position as President of the Institute. In an effort to make it clear that I am not resigning, I will now be known as Executive Director of the Institute.

Text fire destroys Crawford House; suspicion rests on Faculty five

The fire that swept through the Crawford House last night was a tragedy for the school. The faculty five were found guilty of suspicion, but it is possible that other Faculty members were also involved.

Question: How does the present crop of veteran students compare with the previous 17-year-old?

Mr. Pern, Instructor in the Wool Department

Confidentially, they are just as big a bunch of kids as the twelve I had before the war. Just come down and write me any of this bull. Enough to drive a man to drink.

Adventures In Bedlam

We were curled up as a big chair by the time Thomas Hardy when the doorbell rang. There was a knock at the door, and that he had just mailed some- something to the editor of the newspaper, something which he was holding in his hand. He stepped back from the door, and turned to go. He was holding a piece of paper in his hand, and was reading it aloud. A small crowd gathered around him, and watched as he read. He was saying something about a story he was working on, and was trying to explain it to the others. The audience was fascinated by what he was saying, and listened intently as he continued to read. The room was filled with the sound of the page being turned, and the occasional murmur of someone asking a question. As he finished reading, he handed the paper to the audience, and invited them to read it for themselves. The audience was eager to see what he had written, and began to read the paper with great interest. We were all impressed by the talent and hard work that went into the writing of the story. It was clear that this was a piece of literature that we would all enjoy reading.
