Bishop of the Azores, First to Visit U.S., Is Greeted by Local Portuguese

Bringing a message from countrymen and homeland that brought years of nostalgia to the eyes of many of the Portuguese people in this city, the bishop, who is a commanding presence and of rare attainments in scholarship and eloquence, proved to be a man of commanding presence and of rare attainments in scholarship, and he made a deep impression upon all those who heard him. He arrived in this city early last evening with Rev. Francis G. Martins of Gloucester and Rev. Anthony J. Pimentel of East Cambridge, and was greeted by Rev. Joseph T. Grillo of St. Anthony's church, who conducted him to the parish house.

At 7:30 p.m., the hour of the service in the church, the bishop was escorted to the edifice between two lanes of parishioners who formed a guard of honor. The choir under the direction of Richard Perry, with Frank L. Santos at the organ, sang "Vivat Pastor Bone" and "Veni Creator." After an introductory prayer by Rev. Grillo, His Lordship addressed the congregation in Portuguese.

Then followed the blessing and dedication of a statue of the Little Flower of Jesus, after which the bishop sang a hymn to St. Theresa "Drop Me a Flower from Heaven." Then followed a period of reception of the relics of St. Theresa and other relics such as "O Salutaris," "Cor Jesu," "Sanctum Ergo," "Laudate," and "Exultet Urbi." Last night the bishop stayed at the parish house as the guest of Rev. Grillo. Today he will visit places of interest throughout the city, including the high school and the Memorial Auditorium and will then leave for Lawrence to visit a Portuguese parish in that city.
